A book written by Society member Cathie Zimmerman

Silo Point: The New B&O Grain Elevator at Locust Point

The B&O grain elevator at Locust Point in South Baltimore was one of the largest in the world and has been converted to condominiums. After moving there, the author became fascinated by the building's history and transformation into living quarters, leading her to investigate the history of the site and its transformation. The result is a book of 218 pages with 575 photos.
